WAR SECRETARY QUESTIONED BY PROBING SOLONS

Investigation Of 'Paper
Empire' Continued By Senate Committee

WASHINGTON, July 9 — The senate war investigating committee called Secretary of War Robert H. Patterson to the witness chair today to tell what he knows of the Midwest "paper empire" of Harry Garson.

The investigation already has linked the "paper empire" with the firms in the "empire" which committee chairman James M. Mead, D., N. Y., accused of "war profiteering at its worst." May, however, has gone to the house floor to emphasize he made no profit from his work.

Committee counsel George Meader told reporters the committee wanted to hear from Patterson what he may have done to help Garson in obtaining more workmen and in enabling one of the Garson companies to win an Army-Navy "E" for efficiency. An Army witness has testified that Patterson was instrumental in getting the "E" for the company although the Army protested it did not deserve it.

Garson was a key executive in the so-called "paper empire," which handled $78,000,000 worth of government war contracts. A former colonel has ascribed to Garson the boast that he "dealt directly" with Patterson—then undersecretary of war—whenever he had manpower troubles he wanted straightened out.

Firms 'Headache'
Other Army witnesses formerly stationed in Chicago said the firms were "a hell of a headache" because Garson complained constantly to their superiors in Washington.

Patterson, in a Feb. 28, 1945, memorandum, offered "any assistance that may be needed" in helping the manpower ceilings of Batavia Metal Products Company, Batavia, Ill. It was one of the empire's chief firms.

The war profits inquiry rounded out its first full week with these main developments:

Denounces Testimony
1. May, speaking in the house, denounced as "a conspiracy of falsehood and malice" testimony that he exceeded the "limits of propriety" in expediting Garson's war effort. May saw "sinister motives" in it all.

2. Sen. Homer E. Ferguson, R., Mich., expressed the opinion that the senate committee now is powerless to summon May before it. He said the constitution expressly forbids questioning a congressman "in any other place" about a speech he has made on the floor, but.

3. Mead, expressing a desire to "be extremely fair," continued nevertheless to invite the 71-year-old May to appear before profits committee "voluntarily." May could be questioned only if he "waived his constitutional 'privilege'."

4. A committee investigator said he had been offered a $10,000 (Continued on Page Two)

Invitations To Peace Conference Are Issued After Molotov Yields

PARIS, July 9 — France sent out invitations today to a European peace conference of 21 nations July 29 which will have full freedom to fix its own rules of procedure without big four dictation.

V. M. Molotov, making one of Russia's biggest concessions in the history of the foreign ministers council, broke the big four's worst deadlock and cleared the way for the unshackled peace conference for

Multimillionaire Executive Now
Wants Oxygen Tent Made
Into Business Office

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif., July 9—Sportsman Howard Hughes fought stubbornly for his life today while a special corps of hospital officials struggled almost as stubbornly to keep dozens of business associates away from his room.

They didn't get much cooperation from the 40-year-old multimillionaire airplane designer and movie maker, who crashed Sunday night on a test flight of his new XF-11, Army aerial reconnaissance plane. He wanted to turn his oxygen tent into a business office.

A Hughes spokesman said there was little change in his condition, "either up or down"—and that his condition still was critical.

"The next 24 hours probably will tell the story," he said.

Hughes' first concern on regaining consciousness was for anyone who might have been injured when his plane struck two houses and plowed into a $100,000 mansion in the exclusive Bel Air residential district.

He dispatched Walter Reynolds of Hughes Productions, Inc., to the scene of the wreck but was assured that no one was hurt.

Hughes said he knew he was in trouble half an hour before he crashed. He was wearing a parachute, he added, but decided to stay with his ship.

"I did my level best to get her up," he explained. "I knew there was a big investment in time and research tied up in the ship, and I wanted to get her back. The power just gave away."

Cluttering up the hospital corridors were countless members of Hughes' spider-like web of businesses. Press agents for his Hollywood activities, others for his general enterprises, executives from the Hughes Aircraft Company and representatives of his Hughes Productions, Inc., all were stumbling over each other and getting (Continued on Page Two)

VOTERS APPROVE STASSEN - BACKED GOVERNOR THYE

MINNEAPOLIS, July 9—Sen. Henrik Shipstead, 65 year old isolationist senator from Minnesota, in office since 1922, today conceded his defeat in the Republican senatorial primary to Gov. Edward J. Thye.

"Gov. Thye is apparently winning the nomination. His election seems assured. I send him my congratulations. It is a great privilege to serve the splendid people of Minnesota in the senate. I am deeply grateful to the people of the state to have had the privilege of serving them for 24 years." Senator Shipstead said in a brief statement at 7:24 a. m.

Thye's nomination was a personal victory for former Minnesota Governor Harold E. Stassen, who had given him his endorsement, and tacit approval of the principle of the United Nations.

The victory may enhance Stassen's presidential aspirations and may be a factor in influencing the stand of the Republican party on both foreign and domestic issues. Thye held nearly a 50,000-vote lead with more than half the state's precincts counted when Shipstead acknowledged defeat.

SENATE VOTE ON OPA EXTENDER NOT SEEN SOON

Republicans Claim Enough
Support To Block Meat,
Poultry Controls

WASHINGTON, July 9—Republicans today claimed enough coalition support to exempt meat and poultry from price controls under the new OPA bill.

Senate Republican Whip Kenneth S. Wherry, Neb., said a dozen Democrats had joined a near-solid bloc of Republicans in supporting his amendment to ban price ceilings on the two foods. The vote, he conceded, will be close.

A ballot on the amendment was expected tomorrow. Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., O., bitter foe of President Truman on the OPA issue, was scheduled to take the floor today to denounce the bill written by the senate banking committee.

Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley, Ky., warned the senate to prepare for night sessions—starting today—to speed debate. He wants to pass the bill and send it to conference with the house this week.

Barkley, who is fighting Wherry's meat and poultry plan, characterized the amendment as "the key to the whole decontrol question."

If the senate turns down the Wherry amendment, Barkley predicted other decontrol moves also would be rejected quickly. He declined to predict the outcome of the senate's first major test on the new bill.

Still pending is another Wherry amendment to keep controls off dairy products. Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., also has offered an amendment to lift controls on virtually all farm commodities.

The senate is expected to dispose of all decontrol proposals before (Continued on Page Two)

AMERICAN LOOP TAKES LEAD IN ALL STAR GAME

BOSTON, July 9—American League All Stars took an early lead in the annual major league all star game in Fenway park here today when home runs of Charley Keller and Ted Williams boomed.

With Williams on base via a walk, Keller crashed a homer in the first inning to give the favored Americans a 2-0 lead. In the fourth, with the bases clear, Williams smashed one into the center-field seats.

Bob Feller and Claude Passeau started on the mound for the rival American and National league teams. Hal Newhouse and Kirby Higbe succeeded them.

Higbe was knocked out in the fifth when the American sluggers scored three runs. Ewell Blackwell took over for Higbe.

NEWARK, July 9—Funeral arrangements were made today for four-year-old Allen Scott Luger of Columbus, who was drowned yesterday in Buckeye Lake while on vacation with his mother, Mrs. Paul F. Luger.

Congressmen Return From Bikini Test Predicting Superfleets In Future

WASHINGTON, July 9—Two congressmen just back from Bikini today visualized a superfleet with massive decks protecting delicate electronic instruments, and aircraft carriers as sturdy as battleships as the answer to the atomic bomb.

Representatives George J. Bates, R., Mass., and W. F. Norrel, D., Ark., the first of the congressional delegation to return from the atomic test, reported they were convinced that both navies and the atom bombs were here to stay.

CHECK FIGURES IN SENATE WAR PROFITS PROBE

THIS CHECK for $3,156.47 from Erie Basin Metal Products, Inc., Elgin, Ill., is made out to the Cumberland Lumber Co., Cumberland, Ky., and is endorsed on the back by "A. J. May." Disclosure of the check by the Senate War Investigating Committee, headed by Sen. Mead, probing affairs of an Illinois munitions combine, drew remark from Rep. Andrew J. May (D) Ky., "I did not profit in any way or respect." (International)

Closer Observation Of Next A-Bomb Blast Asked

OFF BIKINI ATOLL, July 9—Vice Admiral W. H. P. Blandy, Operation Crossroads commander, considered a proposal today to allow airborne observers to approach as close as 10 miles to Bikini lagoon when the atom bomb is exploded underwater in a second test July 25.

Col. Robert Snider, radiological safety officer for the project, said he had made such a recommendation to Blandy when studies showed "the danger area of radiation would be confined to an eight-mile circle as we had predicted for the first test."

In the first test, when the bomb was exploded in the air, observers were excluded from a 20-mile radius lest they should be perilled by harmful radiations from the deadly atomic cloud.

Brig. Gen. Roger Ramey, commander of air units taking part in the atom tests, said he has asked Blandy to fly a B-29 directly over the underwater blast to take photographs.

"Observations have convinced us that safety factors will permit such a flight with a reasonable safety factor at 30,000 feet and a definite safety factor at 35,000 feet," Ramey said.

The B-29 would fly downwind at a speed of between 500 and 600 miles an hour, Ramey said. It would take the blast waves roughly eight seconds to reach the plane, "and by that time we hope (Continued on Page Two)

Eighteen Bills Approved In Special Session; Rent
Control Delayed

COLUMBUS, July 9—The second special session of the 96th Ohio general assembly today was a matter of record and contained at least one "future reference" notation.

The session ended officially at 8:11 p. m. yesterday when the senate adjourned after presiding officers had signed bills and the solons approved three appointments made by Gov. Frank J. Lausche.

Members of the lower house voted sine die (final) adjournment Monday afternoon after a threatened uprising by rural members over a "sleeper" in the local government fund bill was ironed out in an informal caucus.

Eighteen acts passed by the two houses, which carried total appropriations of $14,750,989, were sent to the governor for signature. The appointments approved, each by a 20-0 vote, were:

Little hope for relief from the heat and humidity in the Circleville area was offered Tuesday by the weatherman.

The extended five-day forecast is generally fair with temperatures above normal for the remainder of the week.

However, the weatherman provided some solace in the prediction of scattered thundershowers toward the end of the week with "some cooling" probable over the weekend.

UNRRA STAFF IN CHINA CLAIMS NEEDY NOT FED

Director Declared 'Persona
Non Grata' By Chinese Government Heads

SUPPLIES MISHANDLED

Help Sent To Country Used
As 'Political Weapon'
LaGuardia Is Told

SHANGHAI, July 9 — The UNRRA staff in China has suggested to Director Fiorello H. LaGuardia that persistent misuse of UNRRA supplies by the Chinese government for political and other purposes might justify shipping the food and materials to other parts of the world, it was learned today.

The UNRRA staff in Shanghai, it was learned, suggested that the supplies might be sent to "the needy elsewhere in the world who would be assured of receiving those supplies."

The staff sent the drastic message to LaGuardia after the Chinese government advised the United States that J. Franklin Ray, UNRRA director, was "persona non grata" because of his criticism of China's mishandling of UNRRA materials.

The message to LaGuardia charged that UNRRA supplies and services are being used in China as "a political weapon" and that the fundamental purposes of UNRRA were being disregarded.

The result, the telegram asserted, was that valuable supplies are accumulating and are being wasted through deterioration and theft while "the starving continue to starve and the needy remain without."

UNRRA officials charged that less than two per cent of all the supplies sent to China had been permitted to reach areas held by the Chinese Communists.

The message to LaGuardia was signed by 300 members of the UNRRA staff.

It said that "it would be unfortunate though justified if because of continued failures of the Chinese government you are compelled to direct supplies to the needy elsewhere in the world who would be assured of receiving those supplies."

The message said that documented evidence on the mishandling of supplies in China was on file in the China office.

It said that the Chinese government (Continued on Page Two)

SPEAKER SCORES BRITISH MOVES IN PALESTINE

YELLOW SPRINGS, O., July 9 —Graduate Dean Horace Kallen of the New School for Social Research said today that British denial of Palestine to the Jews is "a surrender to Arab gangsterism" at the Antioch college Institute of International Relations here.

"Arab interests which oppose Jewish settlement are those of a few great feudal landlords, the psychological kinsmen of the Nazis," he said. "A Jewish homeland would raise wages and standards of living for the Arab peasants."

"Arab nationalism is nothing more than Arab fascism exploiting the poverty, ignorance and religious fanaticism of enslaved multitudes of the Arab-speaking peoples."

Dean Kallen likened British policy in Palestine to British "betrayal of China to the Japanese, Ethiopia to Mussolini, the Spanish Republic to its totalitarian foes and Czechoslovakia to Hitler."

Also speaking at the Institute today were Professor Hans Siemons, a veteran of the Versailles peace table; Herbert Gezork, who will return to Germany this month as chief of the Protestant church affairs for American Military government; and Dorothy Detzer, head of the women's International League for Peace and Freedom. They discussed "Food for a Hungry World."

Robert Redfield, dean of the division of social sciences at the University of Chicago, will speak tonight on "The Social Implications of Atomic Energy."

ment had failed to provide funds for Chinese relief and rehabilitation programs in many regions, crippling their operations.

"This is a prime reason why supplies in the warehouses are not delivered to the needy," the message said. "It is the compelling force causing disregard of agreed policies and results in sale of basic foods without controls while many people die."

It said that "despite numerous protests from the China office of UNRRA supplies have not been distributed in many areas for political reasons. UNRRA supplies are being used as a political weapon in China."

Ray is the second UNRRA chief in China to come to disfavor with the government. Benjamin Kaiser, his predecessor, resigned under similar circumstances. It was understood Ray probably will return to the United States to resume his post as head of UNRRA's Far Eastern affairs office.

Hugh C. Nichols, Batavia, to the Miami University board of trustees for a term commencing today and ending Feb. 28, 1950.

The final senate adjournment was delayed until late last night because a majority of the senate was necessary to confirm the appointments. Seven senators were rushed from their homes to vote on the appointments.

Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who said it was indicated to him that Washington would enact rent control legislation "certainly by the end of next week," delayed for two weeks further state action on Ohio rent control laws.

The governor said he was in contact with Sens. Robert Taft, R., O., and James Huffman, D., O., and that rent control would be acted upon in congress "probably this week, and certainly by the end of next week."

"In view of this, I have decided to consult with legislative leaders on July 19 to see what action, if any, the state must take," he added.

SATURDAY VOTE ON BRITISH LOAN PREDICTED NOW

WASHINGTON, July 9—The house met two hours early today to take care of a burst of heated debate over the proposed $3,750,000,000 British loan.

House leaders scheduled a 10 a. m. session so the decks will be clear for a vote Saturday.

Republican leaders joined administration supporters in predicting house passage of the senate-approved loan by a narrow margin.

One leading GOP spokesman, who declined to be quoted by name, said passage appeared "definite—but it will be close." House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D., Tex., agreed.

Rep. Howard H. Buffett, R., Neb., a vociferous loan opponent who said in the house yesterday that the credit might lead to "World War III and the triumph of world Communism," told reporters that the voters "are really aroused over this issue."

Buffett forecast that more loan-approving house members would be defeated during Fall elections than were defeated as a result of any other issue in the last 20 years.

Loan adherents, however, felt that President Truman's letter stating that without the loan "it will be difficult or not impossible to proceed with the United Nations program" would aid passage of the measure.

mise in the form of a recommendation to the peace conference was expected.

Four basic recommendations to the peace conference comprised the foundation for the compromise reached last night after two strenuous sessions.

'Suggestions' Listed

The recommendations were:

1. There shall be a "general commission" or a steering committee consisting of one representative of each of the 21 nations, which shall operate on the basis of decision by two-thirds vote.

2. The conference shall have the right to suspend or amend its own rules of procedure.

3. Actual details of work on the satellite peace treaties shall be done by five "political commissions" as suggested by Molotov. They will comprise in each case the nations actually at war with the satellite whose treaty is under consideration. France will be represented on each commission, but without a vote save in the case of the Italian treaty.

4. In decisions of the political commission whenever there is a two-thirds vote, the minority shall have the right to submit its opinion to the full conference. In cases lacking a two-thirds vote, the committee in question shall submit two reports embodying the opinion of the factions within it.

In addition, there will be two economic commissions, as proposed by Molotov Saturday—one to study economic questions with the Italian treaty and one to consider questions connected with the Balkan treaties.

Deaths and Funerals

GAYLORD S. HALL

Gaylord S. Hall, 45, Amanda, died at 7:15 a. m. Monday in a Columbus hospital following a month's illness with complications. Before he became ill Mr. Hall had been employed by the state highway department.

The son of Reuben and Pearl Valentine Hall, he was born February 18, 1901. He was married March 18, 1922, to Miss Margaret Moore.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. Frank Downing, Amanda, route 1; a son, Gaylord U. S. Marine Corps; three grandchildren; his mother, Mrs. Reuben Hall, Mead; five sisters, Mrs. Samuel Pontius, near Mead, Mrs. Howard Fouch, near Kingston, Mrs. Joseph Green, Amanda route 1, Mrs. Charles Cook, Grove City, Mrs. James Carroll, Chillicothe route 1; a brother, Carl Hall, near Mead.

He was a member of the Circleville Eagles lodge.

Funeral will be held at 2:30 p. m. Thursday in the Salem church at Mead, the Rev. L. V. Mann officiating with burial in Maple Hill cemetery at Stoutsville. Friends may call at the L. E. Hill funeral home in Kingston after 9 a. m. Wednesday.

ITALIAN VETS DEMONSTRATE, DEMAND WORK

ROME, July 9—Some 2,000 unemployed, crippled war veterans demonstrated before the ministry of interior today, demanding work.

The work demonstration was carried out as the Italian press whipped up Italian anger against the proposed peace terms and urged anti-allied demonstrations.

The war veterans dispersed after an interview with the acting interior minister. One veteran was injured in a tussle with police.

Jack W. Hedges, Washington township, it was announced Tuesday, sailed July 4 from Newport News, Va., aboard the William S. Riddle, a UNRRA ship, for Danzig, Poland.

The boat is carrying a cargo of cows and horses to needy European nations and is sponsored by the Church of the United Brethren. Hedges wrote to Pickaway county friends that the ship is modern and clean and that about two months will be required for the trip overseas and return.

Despite a crushed chest, collapsed left lung, possible skull fractures, eight broken ribs, a broken left shoulder, a smashed nose, and numerous bruises and burns, Hughes called for his secretary the minute he regained consciousness.

He dictated a sheaf of orders, from his oxygen tank, called in an assistant to discuss several pending business deals, and cancelled an appointment in Los Angeles — all before his horrified physician burst in to break up the session.

"He's still in critical condition," said Dr. Verne Mason. "He has a 50-50 chance to live."

Ordering everybody out of the room the doctor posted a deputy sheriff to keep them out.

"I want you to know," he muttered to the last executive to leave, "that if this man dies, it will be your fault."

Mason said Hughes was suffering from profound shock, and had been given two blood transfusions. He said he would be kept in the oxygen tent until he showed improvement.

ZIONIST LEADER BLAMES BRITISH FOR TROUBLES

JERUSALEM, July 9 — Peace and quiet would have prevailed in Palestine if the British government had proceeded immediately to implement positive recommendations of the Anglo-American inquiry commission, Dr. Chaim Weizman, president of the world Zionist organization, said today.

In his first public address since publication of the Palestine report, Dr. Weizman said Jewish-Arab conflicts could have been averted in the Holy Land "notwithstanding (prime minister) Attlee's assertions to the contrary."

"Why didn't Attlee ask himself why Hagana, whose services until after the war were commended, should have changed in his eyes?" Weizman declared.

The Zionist leader spoke in Jerusalem as the Arab higher committee disclosed preparations to present the Arab side of the Palestine dispute to Pope Pius XII.

OCTOGENARIAN, WIFE, 23, PREVAILED BY PUBLICITY

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., July 9—Mr. and Mrs. John S. Smith settled down to married life here today just like any other newly-wedded couple, somewhat annoyed at all the publicity their marriage received.

The 84-year-old retired Miami Beach contractor and his 23-year-old bride, the former Mrs. Dorris M. Atkins, eloped to Coral Gables yesterday after earlier plans for wedding at Fort Lauderdale.

Although a score of newsmen were left waiting at the altar at Fort Lauderdale, a number were on hand at Coral Gables to snap pictures and question the pair as Justice of Peace O. B. Sutton pronounced them man and wife.

to be out of the danger area." Meanwhile, Blandy announced that if the A-bomb blast exploded over the battleship Nevada as intended, the 30-year-old warship would have been sunk or totally disabled.

Instead, the bomb exploded at a distance variously estimated at from 500 to 1,900 feet from the Nevada, near the transport Gilliam. The Gilliam "sank" in a matter of seconds," Blandy said.

Divers found the Gilliam's hull ripped open vertically in two different places and her stack was "shredded like a bouquet of flowers," he added.

The Gilliam apparently went straight down so quickly that photographs taken of the 73-ship target array immediately after the burst missed her, Blandy said.

Blandy spiked for once and all reports that the bomb burst higher in the air than intended. He said that although it missed its aiming point radially, it went off exactly at the planned height.

Blandy also disclosed that the destroyer Anderson—near the Gilliam and her sunken neighbor the transport Carlisle — blew up and vanished after the burst.

Photographs showed the Anderson's ammunition exploding violently while the ship sank.

The transport Crittenden, near the Gilliam and the Carlisle, had her main and superstructure decks buckled downward and her masts bent aft. Her stacks were battered and torn, first by the initial blast and then by the after-blast caused by air rushing to fill a vacuum left by heat and expansion.

The atom bomb's frightful effects were visible all over the Crittenden's topsides, causing a high-ranking officer of joint task force one to observe that "the design of warships' topsides will have to be radically changed unless the atomic bomb is outlawed."

But freak effects also were visible.

Only one clock aboard the Crittenden was stopped by the blast, and in the pantry two fresh eggs escaped without a scratch although a fan directly overhead was ripped from the bulkhead.

Aboard the battleship Pennsylvania, magazines were four degrees cooler than before, Blandy said, because the bomb burst shook the dirt out of the ventilation system.

"The atom bomb is a terrifying system of housekeeping," Blandy commented.

PARTITION OF PROPERTY ASKED IN SUIT FILED

Partition of 37 acres of land situated at the Darbyville and Bloomfield roads is asked in a suit filed Tuesday in Pickaway county common pleas court by Mrs. Edith Sines Williams who, together with the defendants named in the action are heirs of Mrs. Margaret Lucrétia Sines, deceased mother of Mrs. Williams.

Claiming a one-eighth interest in the property Mrs. Williams lists as defendants the following: Grant Sines and wife, Christina; B. Harrison Sines and wife, Freda; Mrs. Miriam Hunt and husband, Lee; Mrs. Elizabeth Timmons and husband, Clark; Mrs. Ossie Lemay and husband, John; Miss Nora Sines; and Otis Williams, husband of Mrs. Edith Sines Williams. The Ashville Banking Co., Ashville, holder of a mortgage on the property involved, is also named a defendant.

tection. When payment was made, apparently the release of the individual involved was assumed or the service contracted for was rendered.

Goering's extortions were said to have extended from individuals through major industries and even to nations. For example, in 1937, he acquired an interest in the Remington cigarette factory. In the next five years his "earnings" from that source amounted to 5,901,000 marks.

By a rare "coincidence" a tax suit for 12,000,000 marks against Reemtsma was quashed soon after Goering's stock was delivered.

The former reichsmarshal admitted to Allied investigators that he "asked" many war plants, particularly in the field of aviation, to transfer "small sums" to his personal bank account. The sums were estimated to have aggregated 1,850,000 marks in one year.

Some of the deposits to, Goering's account baffled investigators. For example, he received in the early war years 1,000,000 marks from a man named Herman, publisher of insurance periodicals. What manner of persuasion Goering exercised over him was a mystery.

Pillow Fight

PRETTY, Mrs. Dorothy Sowder, 21, according to her husband, Edwin, took $4,000 from his pillow and carried it away via the kitchen window of their home in Arlington, Va. He's seeking an injunction to forbid Dorothy from spending any of the money, contending that it does not belong to him. The Circuit Court is still pondering the knotty problem. (International)

Albert Joseph Miglore, 28, of 1729 Elmwood avenue, Columbus, was in the Pickaway county jail, Tuesday, in default of $2,000 bond, awaiting grand jury action on a bigamy charge.

Miglore pleaded guilty Monday afternoon when arraigned before Justice of the Peace Harold O. Eveland on a warrant sworn to by Wife No. 1, Mrs. Naomi Miglore, Columbus.

Miglore is accused of having married Miss Mildred Louise Hammerle, of West Huston street, Wife No. 2, on July 1, in Circleville.

Records of the probate court show that a marriage license was issued June 25 to Albert Joseph Miglore, 28, plant manager, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Miss Hammerle. Miglore was arrested Monday by deputies from the office of Sheriff Charles Radcliff.

SENATE VOTE ON OPA EXTENDER NOT SEEN SOON

fore getting down to work on pricing amendments.

Other amendments offered include Taft's plan to give manufacturers, producers and processors their 1940 prices plus their increased costs, and a Wherry-sponsored proposal to allow distributors, wholesalers and retailers their pre-war mark-ups.

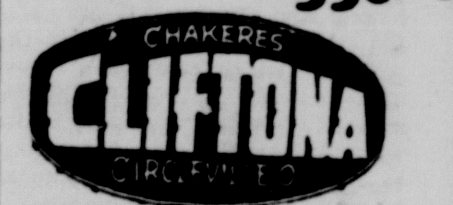

Both the Wherry and Taft pricing amendments were the target of Mr. Truman in his veto of the previous OPA extension bill.

Support of a number of senators for meat and poultry decontrol centers of their announced lack of confidence that the OPA or the agriculture department, which would have food control powers under the new bill, ever would exercise its authority to remove controls.

Taft declared the present compromise bill "has the machinery for decontrol but those wanting meat decontrol don't think they will get it that way."

The pending bill would revive OPA in a modified form for one year and would nullify rent increases levied since the old law expired last week.

FARMERS URGED TO GROW MORE ALFALFA SEED

AAA Committeeman Also Points To Need For Clover Seed Crop

Farmers of Pickaway county are urged by Dewey Downs of the local AAA committee, to give serious consideration to the possibility of harvesting additional acreages of clover and alfalfa seed. In addition to prospects that seed will command good prices, Mr. Downs points out that the government is also offering a special payment of 9 cents per pound for all red clover and 7 cents per pound for all alfalfa and alsike clover seed harvested during the current year and moved into commercial channels prior to January 1, 1947. These payments should make it financially worthwhile to harvest even some of the low-yielding fields.

Grass and legume seeds, says the committeeman, are more vitally needed now than ever before to provide future feed supplies and to maintain soil fertility. Not only have the soils of this nation suffered from the heavy production of crops during the war years, but these same soils must continue to carry the extra burden of production while war-torn countries are restoring their agriculture. Heavy seedlings of legumes in the future will be required to repair this damage.

It is hoped that American farmers will meet this need by exceeding last year's harvests by some 800,000 acres. On a local basis, Mr. Downs points out that extra acres harvested this year will be good insurance against the shortages that farmers have experienced during the past few seeding seasons. Prospects of good financial returns afford the incentive—the proper cutting and harvesting of additional acres, and the careful cleaning and storing of seeds afford the means.

ALEMAN CLAIMS VICTORY DURING MEXICO VOTING

MEXICO CITY, July 9—Miguel Aleman, candidate of the government party, claimed victory today, while his chief opponent, Ezequiel Padilla, charged "fraudulent practices" in Mexico's quietest presidential election in history.

Padilla, who formerly was a member of retiring President Avila Camacho's cabinet with Aleman, said the elections proved Mexico was ready for democracy. But even the presence of federal troops, he said, "had not prevented flagrant and fraudulent practices in the federal district." Padilla did not elaborate.

Aleman made a "victory" statement congratulating Mexican citizens for their "civic sense and responsibility in realizing a democratic election."

"It is a great honor that has been conferred on me by the Mexican people in electing me president of the republic for the next constitutional period. I know the responsibility of this distinction and honor," he said.

OK FOR DRAFT—VETO FOR OPA

PRESIDENT Truman has a busy day in Washington as he signs draft extension bill (left) under the approving eyes of Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, national director, and takes to the air (right) after vetoing the weakened OPA bill. The draft bill permitted induction of childless married men in the 19-44 bracket. Regarding the OPA bill, the President vetoed it because "it was not a price control bill." (International)

OLD LANDMARK RAZED
BEND, Ore.—Nostalgic memories of the days when this Central Oregon city was a frontier village far from the end of the nearest railroad were revived when workmen began razing the old weather-scattered Tripplett house. One of the oldest landmarks in Bend, the house was constructed 40 years ago by Blacksmith Millard T. Tripplett who came from Prineville, Ore. The ornate structure was dusted daily by passing freight wagons that come from the railroad terminus at Shaniko, Ore. Most of the lumber used in the building was hauled by wagon from Prineville.

In 1943 about 20,000 tons of steel were required to shoe the horses and mules in the U. S.

TO OUR CUSTOMERS:—

A Statement of Price Policy on PURINA CHOWS

It is true that our prices on Purina Chows have increased since the end of OPA ceilings on July 1 . . .

BUT . . .

. . . These new higher prices are due ENTIRELY to the increase in the cost of feed ingredients. All ingredients have risen sharply . . . some as much as $37.50 a ton.

. . . This increase in the price of Purina Chows is not as large as the increase in ingredient costs. New prices reflect only a part of the out-of-pocket increase to Purina.

. . . The new prices on Purina Chows do not include a single cent per bag or per ton more profit for Purina. The profit margins on Purina Chows have never been up to the full amount allowed under OPA and will not be raised now to margins previously permitted.

We Are Proud To Follow Purina's Policy

As authorized Purina dealers we are pledging ourselves to follow the manufacturer's lead. We know that our first responsibility is to our customers -- we want to keep feed prices down as much as possible. We are not increasing our margins -- we will not be short-sighted and take advantage of the present situation at your expense.

True, feed prices will go up or down as prices of ingredients vary -- but we promise as always to do our best to supply all the Purina Chows we can get at the best price possible.

HUSKY BROTHERS HIDE FOUR YEARS TO AVOID DRAFT

Illinois Men Surrender After Long Hideout In Attic
On Parents' Farm

CHICAGO, July 9—Four husky brothers were in federal custody today after confessing that they had hidden in a tiny attic room on their parents' farm for four years to evade the draft.

The brothers, ranging in age from 23 to 40 years, surrendered to federal bureau of investigation agents after learning that a nationwide search was being organized for them.

George R. McSwain, Chicago FBI director, identified the men as the Gabriel brothers, Albert, 40; Frank, 28; Henry, 26, and Ernest, 23. He termed it one of the "most aggravated cases of draft evasion of the war."

FBI agent Edward W. Halloran, who had been engaged in a game of hide-and-seek with the four brothers for the past 24 months, said they had escaped detention by barricading themselves in a tiny corner room of their parents' home at Ontarioville, about 15 miles northwest of here.

He said they had left their room only on moonless nights when they sometimes exercised by running up and down a cow path on a lonely part of the farm.

Halloran, recalling his prolonged search for the elusive brothers, said they never showed themselves although a close watch was kept on the farm house. On each of his many trips to the Gabriel farm, he said, the parents gave no indications of their sons' whereabouts.

Halloran said the parents "put on a show" for him whenever he visited the house, and Mrs. Gabriel invariably feigned illness. The elder Gabriel, he said, frequently exposed a cancerous wound on his neck and professed inability to speak, mumbling incoherently in response to questions.

After the boys gave themselves up yesterday, the parents admitted they had spent their entire savings of $1,500 to feed and clothe their sons during their confinement.

The brothers, pale but apparently little the worse for their experience, appeared relieved at ending their self-imposed confinement. They all pleaded guilty and were held to the grand jury under $5,000 bond each.

The brothers first began hiding from federal authorities the day after Albert received a notice to report for induction July 6, 1942. On that day, Albert testified, he and his brothers formed a pact and agreed to hide out together to keep from going into the Army.

Albert pleaded guilty before U. S. Commissioner Edwin K. Walker to a charge of failing to report for induction. The three other brothers pleaded guilty to charges of failing to register. All face a maximum of five years in the penitentiary.

As a final ironical touch, FBI agents said that the youngest brother, Ernest, was a cripple and probably would not have been accepted for military service.

PRICES OFFSET SUBSIDIES

GUERNSEY TYPE SCHOOL TO BE HELD JULY 22

Final arrangements have been completed for a Guernsey type school on July 22 to be held at Lakeholm Farms located near Mt. Vernon according to O. A. McKee, President of the Knox Company Guernsey Breeders Association. This event is one of five being held over Ohio in cooperation with the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association.

The purpose of the school is to study Guernsey Type and teach fundamentals of judging. Although prizes will be awarded to the winners the primary purpose is to improve the participants knowledge of Guernsey Type.

R. L. Holden, representative of the American Guernsey Cattle Club, will act as ringmaster and Charles F. Monroe, associate in the dairy department at the Ohio Experiment Station will act as judge. The judging will start promptly at 10 A. M. and will be open to Guernsey breeders, county agents, 4-H club leaders, vocational agriculture instructors and all those interested in Guernsey cattle.

Committees of local Guernsey breeders are assisting Mr. Mc-

Kee and the Ohio Guernsey Breeders' Association in working out detailed arrangements.

LOCAL DOCTORS ATTEND VETS UNDER NEW PLAN

Details Of Home Treatment Plan Given By Medical Association And VA

Details of the state-wide medical plan which will enable Ohio veterans with service-connected disabilities to receive treatment from their home-town physicians at the expense of the Veterans Administration were announced today.

The plan, which became effective July 1, was developed by the Ohio State Medical Association and the Veterans Administration Branch Office in Columbus.

Offering the veteran an opportunity to use the service of his family doctor or a specialist in his home town, the plan conforms with the basic policy of Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, Medical Director of the U. S. Veterans Administration, to provide disabled veterans with the best possible medical care.

The State Medical Association has provided the Veterans Administration with a list of its members who desire to participate in the program as fee-designated physicians. Only physicians whose names are on the list will be eligible for reimbursement by the Veterans Administration for services rendered eligible veterans, except in emergency cases.

When a veteran applies directly to a fee-designated physician for treatment, the physician must submit a request for authority to treat the veteran. The request goes to the nearest Veterans Administration regional or sub-regional office. This prior approval is necessary before payment for medical services can be guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Request-for-treatment blanks are being supplied all fee-designated physicians. Immediately upon receipt of a request for authority to treat a veteran, the Veterans Administration will advise the physician whether the veteran has a service-connected disability and the doctor will be reimbursed for his treatment.

A veteran who applies directly to the Veterans Administration for treatment of a service-connected disability will be given a letter advising him he is authorized to consult a fee-designated physician. A letter also will be sent to the physician selected by the veteran, advising the physician of the authorization.

A physician who has received services in an authorized case will submit his fee bill to the Veterans Administration office which authorized the treatment. Payment will be made directly to the physician by the Veterans Administration.

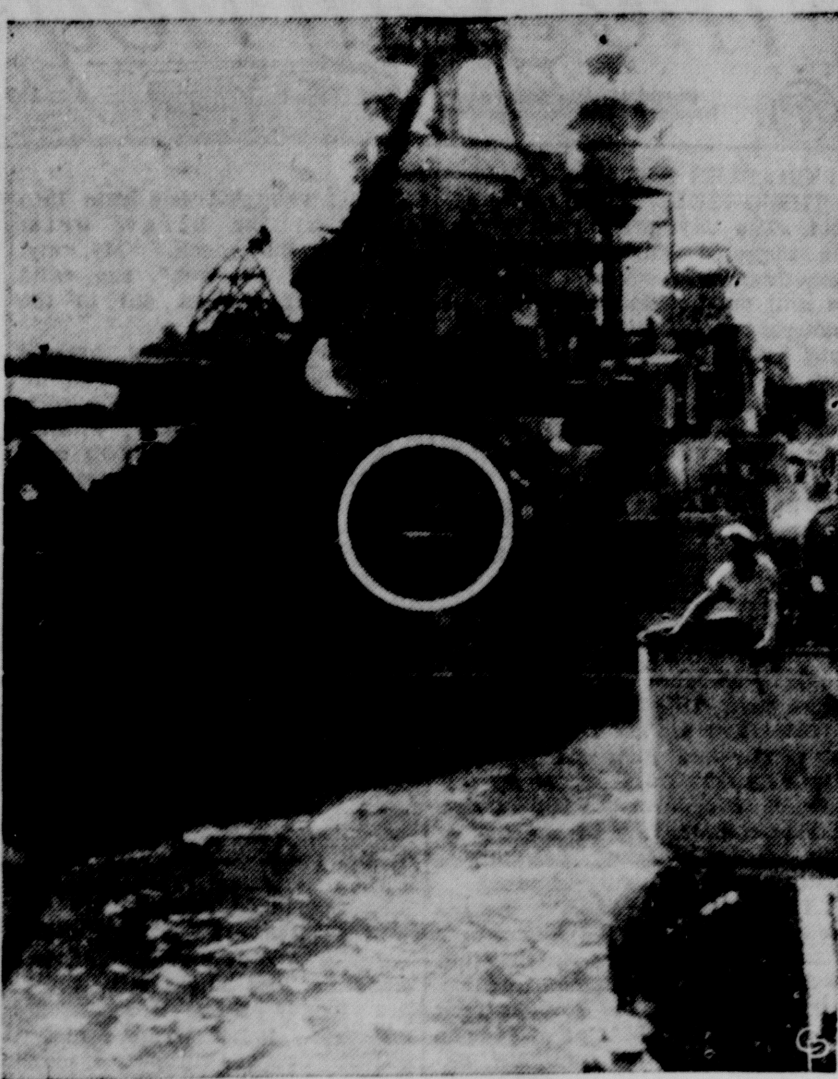

When a veteran requires emergency treatment, he should be treated immediately by the physician selected or called. If the physician desires to ascertain whether the Veterans Administration will assume responsibility, a collect telephone call may be made to the physician at the nearest Veterans Administration regional or sub-regional office.

Regional offices are located in Cleveland and Dayton (to be moved soon to Cincinnati). Sub-regional offices are in Akron, Canton, Lima, Mansfield, Steubenville, Toledo, Youngstown, Cincinnati and Columbus.

The Veterans Administration emphasized that only veterans with service-connected disabilities will be eligible to receive such medical treatment. Veterans with non-service connected disabilities are not covered by the program. However, they are eligible for treatment by Veterans Administration doctors in the event they are financially unable to pay for their own medical treatment.

The new program for outpatient care of eligible veterans includes examinations and treatments in the physician's office, in the veteran's home and in a private hospital which has contracted with the Veterans Administration to provide hospital care for veterans with service-connected disabilities. However, veterans with certain types of disabilities may be requested to report to a Veterans Administration hospital for treatment.

4H CLUB NEWS in Pickaway County

VICTORY CLUB
All of the 14 members were present for the meeting of the West-fall 4-H Victory club held at the school.

The meeting was called to order by Nelson Cupp, president. The constitution, which was read by Jean Campbell, was approved. Richard McAbee told about the care and feeding of his dairy heifer and Glen Yaple reported on his market pig. At the next meeting Nelson Cupp will report on his beef calf and Evelyn Dowden on her poultry project.

Advisors, Mr. Mallette and Mr. Barthelmas, announced a hurdle-making contest for the market pig projects. Similar practical articles were to be made by the other members to compete for prizes at the first meeting in August.

The meeting adjourned until July 12 at the school. Games were enjoyed after the business session.

Elizabeth Stevenson, reporter.

JOLLY STITCHERS

Washington Jolly Stitchers met at the home of Louise Jacobs. The meeting opened with the club pledge and pledge to the flag. Roll call showed nine members and four visitors present.

For community work it was decided to send cards to sick people in the community and to take flowers to church on Sundays. Miss Genevieve Alley was present and gave information about club camp, judging and fair dates.

The girls sewed on their projects. Refreshments were served and games played.

Next meeting will be July 11 at the home of Pauline Elliott.

Frances Peters, reporter.

UP AND COMING

Fourth meeting of the Scioto Up and Coming 4-H club was held at the home of Mary Rodgers.

Members decided to meet at the home of Mary Rodgers at 10 a. m. to start to Gold Cliff for a picnic. A pot luck lunch, swimming and skating were enjoyed at the picnic.

FOOD FOR PEACE

SOIL conservation and free trade emerge in this day of starving peoples as world needs. Food-producing nations during the last five months of heroic measures have averted mass hunger, but only temporarily. Even so, in vast areas like those in China and India untold thousands die from lack of enough to eat.

The peoples of the earth, all of them, are entitled to food. The war has brought into focus the tragic consequences of under-nourishment. The problem can probably be solved if it is attacked on a world scale, under some permanent machinery of the United Nations organization. It becomes obvious that such a plan must include full production of food stuff, which means fertility of soil, which in turn forces consideration of devastating soil-erosion and depletion. Distribution of farm machinery is shown to be important. On top of this there must be distribution, in markets everywhere, without tariffs, of the resultant produce.

Mankind becomes the keeper of his brother, in a practical sense. The matter of assuring food for all peoples can be a tangible outlet for peace efforts, heretofore pursued in a negative and theoretic vein. The actual handling of food and machinery, the teaching of a better agriculture to backward farmers becomes a practical instrument in better acquaintance.

VOTING AS FOREIGNERS

FOUR million Italian-Americans will re-litigate at the polls if Italy is double-crossed by the Council of Foreign Ministers. This word comes from the president of the Italian-American Labor Council.

Probably the number is greatly exaggerated. But this announcement that some American citizens will cast their vote not to do their share in making the best decision for the United States, but to help a foreign country, raises the question: to which country do these people belong?

Isolationism may not have been the only cause, but its opponents elsewhere will be cheered to learn that North Dakota has defeated for the Senate former isolationist Gerald P. Nye.

With Jack Gaver Along Broadway

NEW YORK, July 9—Despite the theater's record of about 80 per cent of each season's shows being financial flops, James Merrill Herd is convinced that money can be made in this reluctant medium and is going to try and prove his point.

"Surveys have shown," he said, "that it is the one form of gambling, if I may call it that, in which it is possible to come out ahead by placing a bet on all the entries. If you invested equally in every play produced in a season, you'd wind up with a profit as a result of returns from the 15 to 20 plays that really make money."

However, Herd isn't going to invest in every play. He is president of a new investment group, the Herd corporation. He knows something about show business and has many theater-wise friends as advisers. His investments will be on an extremely selective basis.

"Everything we invest in won't be a hit, of course," he explained. "Even the best things fail at times. But if you have been around a while, it is a simple thing to weed out the impossible productions. Almost invariably you can tell by the reputation of the producer, or the writer, or the players, whether a production is one of that great majority or predestined flops or something that at least has a chance of being a hit. Our money will go only into things that have one or more of those qualities which give it a fighting chance."

The organization has been authorized to raise $250,000 for investment. The stock is in units of $500. In this way Herd hopes that people besides those so filthy rich that they can afford to throw away thousands of dollars on hit-or-miss angling will be attracted to the theater as backers.

"This black market money or whatever kind of money it is that has been so plentiful for blind play backing isn't going to be around much longer," he said. "There are a lot of theatrically inclined persons who would like to invest small sums, but so far they have had little if any opportunity to do so."

As president, Herd is authorized to make investments of up to $20,000 in single productions. If he believes the corporation should put more than that into any one show he has to get the approval of the board of directors.

Before organizing the present corporation, Herd did some sample investing and came out all right because two of the shows he put money into are the musical hits "Call Me Mister" and "Three to Make Ready."

About 40 now, graying and handsome than most of Hollywood's guys, Herd worked for the OSS during the war. Before that he had spent 11 years in various production and distribution capacities with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Herd said he would read scripts before making investments, but that the only rule that will apply is "is it likely to make money?" He might read something that, as a theatergoer he wouldn't like, but "I'm not investing my likes or dislikes," he said.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

NEW YORK, July 9—The principal of a public junior high school had an experience a few days back which is not uncommon to our era of strikes. It seems the teacher had been astonished when a young man about to graduate turned in a final test which was nearly perfect, inasmuch as he was in danger of flunking. His sudden spurt in learning was all the more remarkable because the answers were printed in longhand, so that the handwriting could not easily be recognized. Investigation developed that the girl at the adjoining desk had done the test for him, but the young man would not admit it.

Usually the best student in each class is elected president, but this class had chosen just about the worst, who happened to be this same young man, for reasons which I do not know. Generally in any educational institution, one who excels becomes the leader, which is natural and sensible. But the wise and kindhearted principal refused to act without knowing. He gave the same test to the boy and that time the lad showed he had lost his learning as fast as he had acquired it. He got 50 or thereabouts. So the principal said to the young man that he could quit school, and no one would know, no public announcement would be made. This 15 or 16 year old would just retire.

Then the fun started, if you can call it fun. The young man refused to retire. The class decided to fight the school and keep one of its least efficient students as leader and threatened to go on strike if anything was done to him.

The matter rested there, in utter confusion. The cheater not only graduated but with the honor—if you may call it that—of being class president. No one did anything about him, being afraid to, considering the possibility that the whole class might strike before graduation.

Thus do immature minors get their way. Thus do children run the schools. Thus do they fix standards for themselves, for education, for the future world. I have heard educators discuss the matter and reason that there is nothing otherwise which can be done, as the pupils will induce parents to act politically against members of the school board. Children say: "grownups strike against Truman and authority, why should we not?" The educators think the parents are responsible for such a condition, the parents think the schools are, and the schools know the children are—but nothing is ever done.

The whole thing could be handled adequately in two moments of clear thought. The confusion is only a sign of our age. None of those accused are really responsible for a condition which can be traced only to the failure of authority (and I mean authority with a capital A, not anyone in particular).

In that town, there is a local law requiring attendance of children of certain ages at school. The agitation of the adolescents and the backdown of officialdom was all an infraction of that law. The principal could pass the case up to the superintendent of the school board because it is their responsibility to enforce law. In this case, the town had just one truant officer, who could hardly rally an entire class, but whoever that truant officer is, if backed by (Continued on Page Eight)

Treating Bronchial Disorders By Inhaling Penicillin Vapor

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

SOMETIMES, science gets a good idea and then has to wait a hundred years for it to pay off.

That's the way it has been in the treatment of bronchial and lung infections, with vapor. What could be more natural when disease exists in the organs of breathing than to think of curing it by having the patient breathe in a vapor containing some healing substance?

It's a splendid idea, this one of bringing a healer in such direct contact with diseased parts with so little trouble. It's a natural and medical men of more than a century ago thought it up.

Ever since, other medical men have been playing around with the same thought without getting much farther forward.

Heavy Droplets

The droplets of medicine were so heavy that they fell almost at once on the lining membranes of structures in the upper part of the breathing apparatus, windpipe and voice-box.

Recently, however, methods have been found of giving a vapor so fine that it can reach the deepest portions of the lungs and so half of the problem was solved, but physicians still lacked a really powerful drug which could be used in this way.

Then along came penicillin and at long last the doctors had what looked like a winning combination. Preliminary reports indicate that it is going to prove as good in practice as it looked in theory.

According to Dr. Allan Hurst of Denver, there is still no definite agreement as to what the best dose of penicillin is for such treatment. In some instances as little as 1,000 units a day have been given with success while as much as 50,000 units every three or four hours has also been used with similarly good results.

Treating Lung Disorders

He tried out this method of treatment in a group of patients with a number of different lung disorders. The penicillin was administered by passing oxygen through a solution containing 50,000 units of penicillin in one cubic centimeter of salt solution.

Among the cases treated were patients with a disorder known as bronchiectasis. This is a condition in which the bronchi or small tubes in the lungs are enlarged or dilated. Such patients also have an excessive amount of sputum, cough a great deal and have some difficulty in breathing.

Patients treated with the penicillin in the form of a vapor, breathed directly into the lungs, were benefited to a great extent, in most instances. The amount of sputum was reduced, fever when present was overcome and coughing and tightness in the chest also were benefited.

Patients with asthma, a condition in which there are wheezing, tightness in the chest and coughing were also helped in many instances by this treatment. It was noted that in some instances some slight aggravation of the symptoms occurred when the treatment was first started but this cleared up quickly.

It would appear that this type of treatment is worth trying in many cases.

WHEN ANY CARD TALKS

IN SOME unusual situations, a different message of a definite nature would be conveyed by each card you might choose to lead from a particular suit. Your lowest would tell your partner to return the lower-ranking of the other two side suits when he got the lead, the card just above that would tell him to ruff with his highest card to force a higher one from declarer, the one above that would tell him to return the higher-ranking side suit, and your top card would tell him not to ruff the current trick at all, but to discard on it.

Chances to use a certain rare signal come only once in some terrific length of time. That is the signal to your partner to ruff a trick with as high a card as he can, hoping he can force from declarer an over-ruff with a card so high that its use will set up a trump trick for you. An example of that was given just a few weeks ago, and now comes another hand sent in by "S. O. S." of Oklahoma City with the same

West led his club K and followed with the Q, noting East's 10-8 high-low. Then he studied and finally led the 3 to the third trick. East thought thus: "West is marked with the A; if South had another club, West would have led that to make sure I would discard and save my trumps, so West had six cards and South is now blank. If West wanted to give me a signal to return the lower-ranking diamonds instead of the higher-rank hearts if I got in later, he would have led his lowest, the 2. If he wanted the highest of his small cards, since he did none of these, his 3 could only mean he hopes I can ruff high."

So East ruffed with his spade 8. That proved high enough to force South to use a high honor, the A or K. That, of course, built a trump trick for West with his J-10-6. This trick, plus the diamond A, beat the contract.

CHAPTER FORTY-THREE

THE GROUND waved under his feet. The daylight turned black. He staggered away, leaned against something and covered his face, to shut out not only sight but all thought and feeling. It was a long while before he became aware of the hard, round wheel of the diner, pressing his spine, the ice of the rain on his skin and the rhythm of hacking.

Then he went back to the junk pile and in a fever of doing, helped to uncover the living and drag out the dead. He closed Kurt Frankel's eyes; he sent grandma on her last journey; he gave Chuckie's father a comforting word, not certain whether the man could hear what he said: "Your boy's safe. They got him out."

Now and again, in the welter of people and tools, he glimpsed Dr. Peck, drawn-faced, waxen yellow, climbing over the rubble, saw the priest, weaving in and out of the throng, kneeling, darning a rosary from shivering hands.

The last person he saw was the red-headed wife of the soldier who had lost his leg. He watched her white face, cinnamon-freckled, while the acetylene torches spat at the metal that pinned down her limbs. She was conscious, biting her lips to silence her pain. Blood trickled where her teeth had bitten her mouth.

An interne crawled over the wreckage, shot morphine into her shoulder. Before her eyes closed, she had recognized Corbett, had managed a gnarly smile: "Hello, Dempsey, did you know me out?" ... and "Say, give me a butt."

His cigaret package was soaked. In the middle of the pack, he found one that was partially dry. He broke the sodden end off, lit it, placed it between her lips. She murmured: "You'll have to hold it for me. Can't use my hands." She drew in just once and then her mouth sagged and it dropped from her lips.

When they finally lifted her out to a stretcher, her eyes opened wide. She struggled to sit. A nurse wrapped a blanket around, held its sides to restrain her. The blanket fell flat at her knees. Corbett saw her lips moving and bent down to catch what she said. "Had the funniest dream ... Dreamt my legs were cut off ... Me and my husband ... Us two without legs."

When he had seen the ambulance doors shut behind her, heard the importunate clang of its bell, he walked slowly back. On the wet cinders, beside the junk of the coach, a small body lay. A nude body. Without a head. A pink glistening torso, flung clear of the wreck. Tiny limbs rigid, yet oddly twisted as though their joints were of cloth. Ice ran through his veins before he bent down and picked up Joanie's doll.

He carried it back to Glen Argyle, drew himself up to the top of the Pullman, sat there with his head in his hands and the broken doll in his lap, too spent, too utterly weary to move or to talk or even to cry.

Yet even that ended and he went into the car. Joanie was on the settee in Nina's compartment, dressed in Nina's fur jacket, the sleeves long, making the end of her arms like seals' flippers. Nina's pancake hat was over one eye and her pigtail stuck out beneath it. Her thin legs were criss-crossed with band-aids.

She was playing a game with the grown-ups, commanding Elaine: "Now, you shut your eyes. Don't peek till I tell you." When she saw Corbett, she jumped up, poised for a leap, shrieked "Eeeeeeee" and flung herself at him. The fur-swaddled arms encircled his throat, almost strangling. He gasped: "Take it easy ... Such passion!"

As soon as he said it he remembered whose words they were. They belonged to the freckle-faced gunner's mate, to the guy in the whites who had come off the raft and gone back to sea. To her father. Joanie snuggled her chin into his collar; the straw brim scratched his cheek. "My, my, my, you're all wet," the child scolded. "You went out in the rain."

He released her arms, pressed her face against his for an instant, set her back on the sofa. She patted the cushion. "You sit here," she began. "Next to me," and then she saw what he held in his hand. "My doll!" Her mouth and eyes gaped. "Why, you broke my doll!" He laid the headless doll in her lap, saw her eyes fill with tears before he went out of the room.

Mrs. Weston came with him. In the narrow corridor, she breathed a few words: "Both mother and child?" He nodded, averted his head. She stood silent, absorbing his news. His nervous forefinger scratched across on the breath-frosted pane.

Then she asked: "Dr. Frankel? What happened to him?"

"The same." She drew a deep sigh. "The poor man! He had only one wish. To live longer than Hitler." She heaved a moment and somberly added: "You live through so much. You come to an end in this way. It's—it's almost a joke."

Again there was silence until Mrs. Weston was ready to speak. "Who gets the child now?"

"The child? ... Why, why she has a family." "Her father's at sea. You remember, her father's a sailor. He put them on the train."

He remembered. He remembered too well. "They'll have to notify him ..."

"Oh!" Her hand went to her mouth. "They'll send him a telegram! Like they did us."

"He'll have to be notified. He'll have to say what he wants done with his child. There's a grandma somewhere. They were going to her mother's, you know." Talking details was good medicine. He felt his mind clearing, sharpening to practical matters. "Red Cross will locate them somehow."

"Oh, of course, the Red Cross." She seemed disappointed. She kept still again for a moment, then asked: "Do you think they could let Elaine keep her? For a while. It would help her so much. She has nothing. That's what's been killing her. Having nothing, nobody who needs her. You see, I have her, I always had someone."

He shook his head. "You and I can't decide that," and paused, knitting his brow. "She'll have to be told. How do you tell things like that to a kid?"

"We'll try ... We'll tell her together."

He followed her back into the crowded cold room. Joanie was hugging the headless doll, holding it tight on her beaver-wrapped breast. Elaine on the sofa beside her was starting a cat's cradle out of the paper ribbon from Nina's box. She seemed to have guessed what her mother-in-law and Corbett had been talking about, for she said tremulously: "Let me have the child."

He began, speaking softly: "There's a family somewhere. They were on their way to her mother's."

"I know. Let me keep her now." Joanie was watching them both, her green eyes shifting from one to the other, dread dawning behind the bright pupils. "Laine," her voice quivered. "Are we going to grandma's?"

"Not yet, darling. Not for a while."

"Where ARE we going?" Her eyes were like emeralds, polished by fear.

"We're going on a train. On another train."

"But mommy won't let me." She sent a terrified glance around the small room. "Where's mommy?" The emeralds spilled over. "I want my mommy," she bawled. Elaine's arm encircled her. She cupped the small shaking chin. "Look at me, darling. Listen to me." Her voice was a soft, hoarse whisper. "Mommy and brother aren't coming with us. They had to go some place else."

The trembling stopped for an instant. "On a train?" "On a different train." The tiniest frown crept between the child's eyes. "To meet daddy?" Elaine's arm tightened around the child's body. She shut her own eyes. "They'll meet daddy some day. Not now."

Joanie's nose puckered; her whole face screwed up. "Then where DID they go?"

Elaine caught her lower lip between her teeth, delaying her answer while she steeled herself. "Far away, sweetheart." Her voice cracked. "Oh, it's a very nice place. So many good people are there."

"Then why didn't they take me? I want to go, too."

Elaine Weston's face worked. She opened her mouth to say something but no words came out. Mrs. Weston moved forward, put her arms around Elaine and the child. "Darling, they wanted you to stay here with us. We'll bring you to grandma's to wait until daddy comes home from the war."

"I can't stay without mommy." The child sounded panicky. She struggled in the woman's embrace, trying to get free. "Let me go," she screamed. "I have to go back to my mommy. I can't stay on trains without mommy. Daddy said I must stay with mommy."

With one desperate push that took all of her strength, she broke free and jumped off the seat. She rushed toward the door.

Corbett barred her way. Her tiny fists flailed his legs. "Lemme go. Lemme go back to mommy."

He scooped her into his arms, held fast against her kicking and squirming. At last she grew tired and quiet. She sucked in big gulps of tears and saliva, burrowed her head on his shoulder. After a while, her tear-stained face turned up to his. She dug her eyes with her fists. "Is mommy dead?" she asked.

He knew he could stand it no longer and eased her arms from his neck, set her back on the sofa. "I'm going out, Joanie," he murmured, not believing she would hear him or care. "I'll buy some crackers and stuff."

He felt Nina's hand on his arm, heard her voice. "You stay here, I'll go. You've done enough."

"I'll go," he said. "It's easier when you do something."

"Please wait for me. I have to go with you." She swooped down to a suitcase, whisked out a jacket and scarf, threw them around her. They walked together as far as Glen Argyle's platform. Then his knees buckled. He swayed against her, steeled himself on her slender shoulder before he sat down on the step. "I'm tired," he muttered, ashamed of his weakness. "This takes it out of you. You don't realize—"

She sat down beside him, saying nothing, her arm pressed to his. The rain swirled in their faces, dripped on their shoes. In their mutual silence, he knew comfort, greater comfort than words.

He broke it first. He said: "Sorry I caved. Too much all at once. Emotional. Physical. I told you we're not Superman."

She answered, stating, not asking: "You care a good deal for that kid. It's funny you should, as if she was thinking out loud, yet with his mind rather than hers. It's strange you should do so much for them all. With all your own problems."

He let her go on, not even trying to answer.

"Elaine Weston told me what happened last night—this morning."

He raised his brows. "You're quite a person," she said.

Again he said nothing at all. (To Be Continued)

Shrewd and systematic attention to business interests may modify this. Consideration of duty and obligations should clarify misunderstandings.

Those whose birthday it is should make an effort to place their affairs and responsibilities on a solid and dependable basis for future reaping, concrete rewards and security, comfort and harmony. Such worthy attitude may be incited by certain domestic inharmonies, misunderstanding or friction, perhaps due to neglect or lack of consideration.

Application, diligence, sturdy and systematic devotion to obligations might iron out difficulties, restoring pleasant relations at home or on the job.

A child born on this day may be hard working, serious and dependable, although friction or jealousy in domestic or social relations may create misunderstandings.

Von Bora Society Plans Annual Picnic

Reports Heard At Lutheran Group Meeting

Members of the Von Bora society of the Trinity Lutheran church met Monday evening in the parish house with 50 members and guests present. The meeting was opened by the group singing "Hark I Hear the Savior Walking". Mrs. James Stout gave the scripture lesson and offered prayer. Mrs. Dudley Carpenter presented the topic of the month, "That India Be Blessed".

Mrs. Eleanor Edgington, Mrs. Charles Niles and Miss Florence Hoffman were appointed to serve on the program committee for the annual picnic to be held at Ted Lewis park on August 5 at 7 p. m. A report on the progress of the World Action program was given by the Rev. G. L. Troutman. At the present time 70 percent of the goal has been reached and the society voted to give $50 to the cause and adopted a resolution to recommend to the church council that another opportunity be given the congregation to contribute to this fund.

The meeting was closed by singing, "Now Thank We All Our God" and reciting the Lord's Prayer.

Miss Florence Hoffman, program chairman, presented the musical program she had arranged. The opening number was a piano solo, "The Way Side Rose" offered by Miss Nancy Bower.

Mrs. Carpenter sang, "When A Maid Comes A Knocking At Your Heart", "Katinka" and "Oh What A Little Whopper". She was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Ervin Leist.

Miss Polly Kerna offered two piano selections, "Rondalla Ara Conesa" and "Valse Brillante". Mrs. Clifford Heimlick, "The Good Shepherd" and "In the Garden of My Heart". She was accompanied by Miss Jeanette Wenrich.

The program was closed with a piano solo played by Miss Wenrich.

CATHARINE WOOD IS ENGAGED TO MILTON TOOTLE

Harry Wood, South Court street, announces the engagement and approaching marriage of his daughter Catharine, to Milton Tootle, son of Mrs. Charles Wallace, Williamsport. Miss Wood's mother was the late Mrs. Roxie Starkey Wood.

The bride-to-be is a graduate of Circleville high school and Mr. Tootle received his discharge from the Navy at Great Lakes Naval Training Center, June 3.

The marriage will be an event of early August.

U. B. MISSIONARY GROUP TO MEET

The United Brethren Missionary society will meet Thursday at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Robert Dick, East Franklin street.

If the weather permits this meeting will be held out of doors and the children of the members are especially invited to attend as the program has been planned around them. Mrs. J. R. Kirkpatrick is in charge of the program for this meeting.

Wipe the sole plate of your iron with a damp cloth after each using; dry thoroughly, of course. Occasionally rub on a coat of paraffin or beeswax and wipe off with a paper or cloth. This will keep it immaculate.

She Cooks, Too

DOROTHEA FAGNANO, Yonkers, N. Y., is not only pretty and a good student, but she can cook. The 15-year-old kitchen star has won a $100 Savings Bond in a nationwide recipe contest for school girls, competing against more than 30,000 girls. And the winner Dorothea cooked up was a carrot and onion au gratin casserole dish. (International)

KEEP THE HOUSE COOL IN SUMMER

By ELEANOR ROSS

Meteorologists come up with the news that the world is getting colder! But for most of us, Summer still means hot, sticky, muggy weather, even if we are imperceptibly inching towards the ice age! It is good to really do a job to make the house as seemingly cool and as pleasant as possible, but also to change one's working habits even if it means altering the entire household schedule.

First off, here we go on our campaign against those pesky dust-catchers, ornaments and bric-a-brac. Put 'em all away with the exception of flower containers. Nothing gives such a cool, lovely air to a room as clusters of flowers and foliage.

Remove Drapes

Take down draperies, and decide whether it's to be cool glass curtains or no curtains at all at certain windows. Nice glass curtain fabrics are in the stores again, including that wonderful quick-drying nylon mesh. Rearrange furniture, placing chairs where they are most likely to catch the breeze. Get such items as heavy sofa and chair cushions and hassocks out of sight. They look and are warm.

If it hasn't already been attended to, put away all winter equipment in a box or in a spare closet if you have one. The ice-cream freezer is more important than the turkey roaster in July! Simplify table settings, substituting place mats that can be wiped clean in lieu of more elaborate ones that require frequent laundering. And go in for trays! They not only reduce table setting to a minimum but they enable one to wander off and dine or snack where there is the most cool comfort.

Don't put on the dog for guests, no matter how important you may deem them! Chances are that they are conscious of the mercury, too, and they'll be glad to dine informally and comfortably. And, with all this, streamline your kitchen and meals, too.

MARY RUTH SHAW IS BRIDE OF R. E. OESTERLE

Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Shaw, near Williamsport, announce the marriage of their daughter, Mary Ruth to Robert E. Oesterle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oesterle, near Yellowbud, Wednesday evening.

The Rev. Harold B. Weir performed the single ring ceremony at his home in Chillicothe. Miss Norma Jean Oesterle, sister of the bridegroom and John F. Dearth Jr. attended the couple.

For her marriage the new Mrs. Oesterle chose a white street length dress with white accessories and a corsage of red roses and feverfew. Miss Oesterle wore a blue dress with white accessories and her flowers were pink with feverfew.

Following the ceremony members of the immediate families were guests at a wedding dinner given by the bride's parents at their home near Williamsport.

The new Mr. and Mrs. Oesterle are making their home near Yellowbud where Mr. Oesterle is engaged in farming with his father.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. G. Ralph Smith and children, Ralph and Margaret, Philadelphia, Pa., are the guests of his mother, Mrs. George Smith, East Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Voll, Toledo, have returned to their home after a visit at the home of Mr. Voll's sister, Mrs. J. C. Rader, South Washington street. Mrs. Ralph Leach, Northridge road accompanied them to their home where she will visit for a week.

Miss Winifred Parrett, and Miss Florence Dutton have returned from Welch, West Va., where they visited last week with Mr. and Mrs. James H. Adams.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Gray and daughter, Aretha, Columbus, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gray, West Franklin street, have returned after spending a week's vacation in Charlotte, Michigan.

Mrs. Minnie Morris and Mrs. Pearl Page have returned to their homes after attending a four day reunion of former residents of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphan home in Xenia. There were more than 600 registered from many different states including California, Washington, Missouri and Florida. The occasion was considered a great success by all who were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Clem Keith and children, Willmot, have returned to their home after visiting with Mrs. Keith's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Garrett, Saltcreek township.

Using a wooden spoon for stirring food in a metal container will achieve two things: it prevents the utensil from being scratched, and avoids burned fingers from the transmitted heat from the metal spoon.

UNCLE BAPTIZES THREE COUSINS IN RUSHVILLE

The Rev. L. W. Green, pastor of the United Brethren church, Rushville, performed a baptismal service Sunday afternoon in his home. The children baptized were all nieces or nephews of the Rev. Mr. Green.

Michael Harold Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Wilson, Commercial Point, Janice Marie Younkin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Younkin, Columbus and Phillip, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lou West, Columbus, were baptized.

Following the ceremony held at 3 p. m., a picnic supper was held for the children, their parents and grandparents. The grandparents present included Mr. and Mrs. Turney Pontius Route 4, Mr. and Mrs. Coyt Wilson, Commercial Point, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Younkin, Commercial Point.

Mrs. Irene Rhoads, Columbus, who is the godmother of little Michael Wilson and Miss Arlene Dunkle, Tarlton, also attended the picnic and baptismal ceremony.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Try this next time you make waffles for several people. Light the oven to lowest heat, then bake all the waffles in the iron. Put cake rack in the oven and let the waffles stand on the rack. They won't be soggy and no one will have to wait while others eat.

Provide yourself with two clean ironing board covers always available, one for dark and colored clothing, one for white things. If you do this you will be taking no chances of color stains on freshly washed white blouses or curtains.

Try warming your furniture polish before using. Stand the bottle of polish in hot water and let it get thoroughly warm before you use it. Warm polish is said to penetrate the pores of the wood more quickly than cold.

To slip curtains on to the flat type of curtain rod is not easy to do, as you probably know. Try wedging a coin halfway into the edge of the rod. The round shape of the coin makes the job easy.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

authority, could get 100 deputies in short order. They could require attendance at school and arrest violators—in general I think without much trouble.

The failure then is one of authority, which had ridiculously accepted a situation imagined in a child mind as the norm for its conduct of affairs. Children have no right to strike. They are minors, they have no standing before the law as rule unless represented by guardians who are adults. They are not workers struggling for improvement in wages or economic conditions. They are merely what they are—children required to attend school. And school is a public institution provided for their education which fixes its own adult standards of education, not those of children. A child then has no standing, either moral or legal. He has no right to strike. No labor union I ever heard of, contended children with their immature minds had the right to defy a law of their community, providing for community welfare, and walk out. They have no moral standing because they have no complaint against the law. They just wanted to assert themselves and have their way—and did, over the entire community.

So I say authority is responsible and this is where the correction must be made. The failure was not of the children, or even of their parents who may have raised them badly. Put authority back of the law in the schools and you will have no strikes—and no chaos, no domination by children who are below the natural period of adulthood.

MOUSE SUICIDE AFTER PALS ARE EXTERMINATED

CHICAGO, July 9—What Cushtodian John Kornak claimed was the last mouse in the city hall went to a suicide's grave today.

The mouse, a small gray one, plunged to its death yesterday from a fourth floor window of the press room.

Two reporters who saw the death leap said the sleek rodent crept timidly from its lair behind a dusty radiator and scrambled to the window ledge. It sat there a few seconds, wrinkled its nose and then jumped.

The mouse's body landed on the pavement of an airway four floors below.

Kornak had a theory concerning the "mouse suicide"—believed to be the first since the Pied Piper charmed the rodents of Hamelin into the sea.

"Two months ago," Kornak said, "a mouse ran onto a courtroom floor during a trial. Two women jurors jumped onto the clerk's table and nearly died."

"I was summoned and got a couple of exterminators who began the greatest mouse abatement drive the building has ever seen."

"Maybe we missed getting this mouse. Maybe we got all the others and this one figured he couldn't get away any longer and took what you boys call 'the easy way out.'"

"Maybe," he said, "the mouse was despondent about things."

Water Revenue Can Not Be Used For Any Other City Purpose

SURPLUSES MAY BE USED ONLY IN WATERWORKS

Attorney General Rules No City Has Right To Assess Against Water Income

Circleville city council will be unable to replenish the city treasury by charging rental for use of the municipal water system properties—after the city takes over the property from the Ohio Water Service Company—it was learned Tuesday.

In a ruling handed down at Columbus, Attorney General Hugh S. Jenkins declared that no city has the legal right to charge its city water department rental for the use of its water works for the purpose of bringing revenue in to the city's general fund.

The state attorney general also ruled that a city cannot lawfully charge the water department rental for the purpose of "repaying money improperly diverted from a waterworks surplus into the city's general fund."

Attorney General Jenkins emphasized that "a surplus arising from the operation of the water works of any municipality may only be used for waterworks purposes."

The opinion was requested by the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices and the attorney general said that it applies equally to all Ohio cities.

Circleville citizens, by a vote of 1,390 against 995 in a special referendum election demanded by the Ohio Water Service Company and held June 18, approved a municipally-owned water system. The balloting was on the question of issuance of $550,000 in mortgage revenue bonds to finance the purchase of the water properties from the Ohio Water Service Company.

An ordinance authorizing the bond issue was passed by the city council last March and the water company subsequently petitioned for the special election.

As a result of condemnation proceedings instituted in Pickaway County Common Pleas court the value of the water properties was fixed at $420,000, and Aug. 14, 1946 was the deadline set by the court for the buying of the properties by the municipality.

MEN AND WOMEN IN UNIFORM

Pvt. Dale F. DeLong was transferred from administrative duties in the plans and training office to first trombonist in the Post Band at Keesler Field, Miss., and he is now spending a 15-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mark DeLong, 370 East Mound street. His correct military mailing address is now Pvt. Dale F. DeLong, 45030380, 502nd A.A.F. Band, Keesler Field, Miss.

George E. Davis, 217 West Huston street, has reenlisted in the Army for three years. During World War II he was with the 371st Infantry stationed in the European theater and he has four and one-half years of service, 40 months of which were spent overseas.

Davis wears the good conduct medal, American defense service medal, American theater service ribbon, EAME theater service ribbon, two bronze stars, and World War II victory ribbon. In reenlisting Davis selected the engineers and the Pacific theater.

NAVY'S TERMS OF ENLISTMENT ARE CHANGED

The local Navy recruiting station announced Tuesday that terms of enlistments has been changed. Men 18 to 30 applying for enlistment must enlist for either a 4 or 6 year period. Seventeen year olds must enlist for minority (day before 21st birthday).

Exceptions to this ruling are men applying for and passing the Eddy test for electronic technician's mate training. In this branch of the Navy, men have the option of a 2-3-4 or 6 year enlistment. Men reenlisting may still do so for 2-3-4 or 6 years provided they have had one year of active duty during World War II.

It was also stated by Navy recruiting officers that the Navy is still in need of electronic technicians, this is why the enlistment terms for this branch has not been changed. It is urged that all young men contemplating an enlistment in the Navy do so in the very near future. The Navy is rapidly reaching its top peacetime strength and when this figure has been reached more changes are anticipated in enlistment policies. Enlistment must be made prior to October 6, 1946 to be eligible for the benefits under the G. I. Bill of Rights.

Attention is invited to the fact that men now enlisting in the Navy as apprentice seamen receive $75 per month under the new pay bill recently signed by the President. This is an increase of 50% over the old pay bill.

DOG RETRIEVES BILL FOR OWNER

Bundy Sowers' Love For Dogs Grows When 'Patsy' Brings In $10 Bill

Bundy Sowers has always had a warm spot in his heart for dogs. That spot was warmer, Tuesday, because Bundy was richer by $10 as a consequence of the keen canine instinct of "Patsy", a faithful cocker spaniel.

It all happened Sunday on the 320-acre Pickaway township farm of Harry E. Montelius, Route 1, Circleville, where Sowers is a tenant.

While doing Sabbath chores Sowers lost a $10 bill. As soon as he discovered the loss Sowers began a search for it. Hour after hour passed while Sowers hunted and "Patsy" trailed him in the search.

Finally Sowers gave up the job, decided that the money was gone for good, and he went into the house to rest. A few moments afterward in trotted "Patsy". The $10 bill was dangling from the dog's mouth.

Sowers admitted that "Patsy" has quite a reputation as a retriever.

FEDERAL WHEAT CROP INSURANCE IS NOW ON SALE

Federal crop insurance on Winter wheat is now on sale at the Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation office or through authorized agents, Pickaway County Agricultural Conservation Chairman John Boggs announced today.

Wider choice in the amount of insurance he buys is offered the Winter wheat grower this year, according to Mr. Boggs. The buyer can choose from among several different amounts of coverage, pay a corresponding premium and collect a corresponding indemnity in case of loss.

"Drought, flood, hail, insects or plant diseases can ruin your wheat crop, but they won't mean financial ruin for you if you have crop insurance," Mr. Boggs said.

Applications for insurance must be filed before planting but not later than September 15. The crop is protected against all unavoidable natural risks from planting time through harvest.

During the past several weeks, meetings have been held in the county to set up a crop insurance sales organization. Community committeemen have been appointed as sales agents and will soon be calling on wheat farmers.
